Skyla Dawn Luckey, a native of Mississippi, has a background in radio, film, theater, and journalism. She fell in love with theater at an early age in Jackson, Mississippi, when she began training in summer acting camps at New Stage Theatre. As she grew older, she performed in local community theaters, and local television commercials.

While she was in community college, she got an internship in radio at Clear Channel Radio in Jackson. Around five months later, she was hired as a radio personality. Luckey went on to work in radio in Jacksonville, Florida, and Tampa.

She has worked as a journalist for publications in Florida and Mississippi.

As for film, she was hired as the first researcher for Paul Saltzman's "Prom Night in Mississippi", and conducted research for "The Last White Knight".

She performs as an actor in the acting troupe, Gypsy Stage Repertory, based in Tampa Bay. She resides in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Skyla graduated with a BA in mass communications with a concentration in journalism from the University of South Florida St. Petersburg.
